Kevin,

Now that IPRs have been instituted as to all three patents, including all of the asserted claims, please let us know if Singular is willing to stipulate to a stay. If we don't hear from you by 3pm ET, we will assume that Singular's position has not changed and it will oppose Google's motion, which we plan to file today.

Best,
Andy

Counsel,

Singular disagrees and believes that a motion to stay is inappropriate given the advanced stage of the litigation and is also premature given the fact that there are three patents-in-suit and the PTAB has only instituted inter partes review on one of them.

Thanks,
Kevin

Counsel,

As you have likely already seen, earlier today the PTAB instituted inter partes review of Google's petition #2021-00155, regarding Patent No. 10,416,961. Given that decision, Google believes that an immediate stay of this litigation pending a final written decision from the PTAB is in the best interests of the parties and the Court.

Please provide your position on this issue by the end of the day tomorrow. If Singular does not stipulate to a stay, Google intends to move for one as soon as possible.

Best,
Andy
